Moreover, Christians have always cared for the unborn, the orphan, and the least among us. The time is now for this generation to reaffirm what believers have always believed: everybody is created in the image of God. Painter's Archaeology: Finding & Reconstructing Decorative Paint· by Stephen G. Heaver The Road Club Spring Drive by Mark Jurd The Goulash Cannon by Kathleen Haak

An inspiring, humorous and adventure-packed mountain memoir that takes the reader on a journey into western Canada's backcountry parks during the raucous 1960s and 1970s. Born in the west but raised initially in the east, Dale Portman was eight years old when his family headed back to the land of the Rockies. Growing up in Calgary, he was introduced to the Rocky Mountains at an early age and as a young man eventually found work in Banff National Park, where he spent most of his time in the saddle while working for outfitter Bert Mickle, based out of Skoki Lodge near Lake Louise. Jobs in the local tourist industry and at a couple of ski hills followed. Eventually Dale was drawn to the warden service, doing avalanche control and forecasting in Rogers Pass, with the backcountry of northern Jasper, Yoho National Park and Field, BC, eventually becoming the stage for many memorable, humorous, tragic and life-affirming moments. The Green Horse takes the reader on a journey through a time when our mountain national parks were less touristy and more substantive. When there was space for everyone to enjoy without having to line up and there was a sense of freedom and adventure in the air.

Rosie and Danny are brother and sister who live on a big cattle ranch in the wilds of Wyoming. The ranch has been in their family for over a century, so they know the land well or so they think. One day, something very strange happens. Two tiny horses appear, no bigger than a foot, and the kids name them Gypsy and Buck. Rosie isn't sure she wants to tell anyone about the tiny horses. They might think she's crazy! She keeps the mysterious creatures a secret for a while until she finally decides to tell her parents and the vet, Dr. Adams.

Gypsy and Buck shock everyone, but her father has an answer. His grandfather always said the ranch had a secret. Is it possible the little horses have been appearing at their family ranch for decades? As Rosie does some research and digs into her great-grandfather's journals she begins to believe the horses have something to do with earthquakes. It's a magical mystery that travels through time, but Gypsy is the only one who knows the whole truth!

mind, the text weaves together past and present, bringing together important ideas about Irish music from a variety of sources and presenting them, in three parts, within interdisciplinary lenses of history, film, politics, poetry, and art: I. Irish Music in Place and Time provides an overview of the island's musical history and its relationship to current performance practice. II. Music Traditions Abroad and at Home contrasts the instrumental and vocal musics of the "Celtic Nations" (Scotland, Wales, Brittany, etc.) and the United States with those of Ireland. III. Focusing In: Vocal Music in Irish-Gaelic and English identifies the great songs of Ireland's two main languages and explores the globalization of Irish music. New to this edition are discussions of those contemporary issues reflective of Ireland's dramatic political and cultural shifts in the decade since first publication, issues concerning equity and inclusion, white nationalism, the Irish Traveller community, hip hop and punk, and more.

Pedagogical features—such as discussion questions, a glossary, a timeline of key dates, and expanded references, as well as an online soundtrack—ensure that readers of Focus: Irish Traditional Music, Second Edition will be able to grasp Ireland's important social and cultural contexts and apply that understanding to traditional and contemporary vocal and instrumental music today.

In early September, 1956, Judy Woodall sailed off to Europe with a group of young women, all students at Tulane University's Newcomb College about to experience their Junior Year Abroad. Starting that first night at sea, Judy kept an extraordinarily detailed journal recording her experiences living in Paris and Dijon and her many travels throughout Europe. Through her eyes, we see a post-war Europe still struggling with continuing shortages while the fear of another war simmers in Hungary, and we are with her as she experiences the treasures of European art and music. journal gives a vivid day-to-day portrayal of a time worth remembering - a time now fading into history. Ten years ago, Bill Lansing decided to commemorate his memories of growing up on a small ranch in northern California. Like most baby boomers, not much was ever relayed about their parents history. So he decided to remedy that for his future descendants. The book starts out with his parents courtship in 1920s and connects the narrative memories from 1946 with personal photos in a chronological manner until 1969. Many of the stories are funny, as Bill writes with passion and humor. The title comes from three general sources: growing up with horses, beginning at age six; hating the bandy chickens his mother coveted; and Bills passion for baseball. These three topics anchor the flow of the book.

A many-layered work of historical reportage, Watercolours draws on the real life story of Dina Gottliebova-Babbitt (1923-2009), a Czech-American artist of Jewish ancestry, who was a prisoner at Auschwitz, and whose story came to light in the late 1990s. It was at this time that Gottliebova attempted once more to recover the art she had created in the concentration camp, and which had become the property of the Auschwitz-Birkenau State Museum. The dispute escalated into an international scandal, with the American Department of State and the Polish government becoming involved. Here, journalist Lidia Ostalowska reconstructs Gottliebova's time in the camp, while looking also at broader issues of historical memory, trauma, racism and the relationship between the torturer and the victim. In Gottliebova's case, SS Doctor Josef Mengele took a special interest in her talent, commissioning her to paint portraits (the watercolours of the title) of Roma prisoners. Mengele himself is one of the many characters in this narrative. Ostalowska draws on hundreds of studies and accounts of the hell of the camps, and tells the story of one woman's incarceration and her battle for survival, bringing in many other supporting lives. Before she worked for Mengele, Gottliebova had decorated the children's barracks at Auschwitz with images from the Disney film, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. After the war, she worked as an animator for Warner Brothers and married Walt Disney animator Art Babbitt, the man behind many of the world's best-known cartoon characters including Goofy and Dumbo. Gottliebova (under the name Dina Babbitt) lived in California until her death in 2009 at the age of 86. Containing full pedigree of all the imported thorough-bred stallions and mares, with their produce.

We are American Muslim students living in San Diego, California. Every one of us was BORN HERE, in the USA. Just like you, we come from many different ethnicities, races, and backgrounds. We are proud students of San Diego schools but are sometimes misunderstood and bullied in school. We want to feel safe, comfortable, and happy in school. So, when someone says to us, "You are not American enough to understand," that is inaccurate because we are just as American as you. Unfortunately, such biased statements are sometimes uttered by students, teachers, and staff. People make fun of us, pull our scarves, attack us physically, or call us horrible names. According to recent studies, the bullying of American Muslim students is twice that of any other religious group. The one place, our schools, that should be the most welcoming for students and their families is sometimes the most hostile. There are many horrible Islamophobic stories being told around the country, created out of fear and prejudice, similar to those told about Native Americans, African Americans, Jewish Americans, Latin Americans, Asian Americans, and more. We know how much it hurts and divides us. We are sorry if it has happened to you, and we promise to defend and comfort you when we see something wrong. We hope you will do the same for us. We love to hang out with friends. We play all kinds of sports. We surf. We shoot baskets. We play soccer and tennis and volleyball. We play piano, violin, trumpet, drums, and guitar. We love our families. We do our best in school and have lots of plans for the future, just like you. We love our religion, just like you. We know that Islam is a religion of comfort and peace, because that is how we live it with our families and our community. We are so happy to get to know you better. We are so happy to share our pictures with you. We are your new friends. The American Muslim Students of San Diego, California

And it is the story of Kevin O'Boyle, an embittered riverfront laborer, who blames the world for his troubles, and finds the crippled city his perfect prey. Several characters in the novel are actual historical figures, most notably Ginnie Moon, Judge "Pappy" Hadden, and Cap'n Jim Lee. Their actions, and those of the other characters, are entirely fictional. The plague, one of several to hit the city in the years following the war, was all too real.

He Was My Heart is the heartwarming story of a horse named Windwalker. It is the memoir of his fifteen years spent with the author. His humor, antics, and amazing intelligence shines forth in these pages. The story also incorporates stories about other animals the author either owned or encountered on her journey as a veterinarian. The author captures the special nature of the human-animal bond throughout her story and writes with humor and occasionally sadness. The stories are also educational, explaining details in a clear and concise manner. This is a must-read for any animal lover and even for those who have never had the blessing of an animal to love.
